AGAINST VOTING YOUNG

A fairly general conviction is held that young people in the United States have a great deal of self-assurance and even feel that they ought to be put in charge and run things. Some parents or high-school-age young folks may have felt so sure of this that it was one of their basic tenets. There now comes to hand a piece of evidence which suggests that young people are unsure of their own grasp on public affairs and willing to let their elders use a guiding hand, at least for a little longer.

This evidence takes the form of a study made by the newly formed Institute of Student Opinion, which asked 85,916 students in 1,000 high schools whether they favored the legal voting age to 18 years. Fifty-three per cent of those participating were against the amendment; 43 per cent favored it and four per cent had no opinion.

M. R. Robinson, director of the institute, was himself startled by the findings, and so were a number of educators who had been asked in advance how they thought the vote would go, and who guessed wrong. The students, in explaining their stand, expressed such views as: "Boys of 18 do not fully understand political and economic affairs," "Boys and girls of 18 are too preoccupied with frivolities," "Eighteen-year-olds have neither the mental ability nor experience to vote honestly and intelligently."

Such honest humility is refreshing, whether well-founded or not. Some people now old enough to have the franchise would do well to consider whether they, making up their minds rather casually at the polls on issues before them, have regarded the ballot with the same awe and respect were it not yet worthy of the voting privilege.—New York Times.

STRATEGY ON THE FARM

A Vermont farmer was plowing a field with one horse, but he was yelling "Giddap, Jack, Giddap, Jerry, Giddap, Casey, Giddap, Cromwell."

A stranger passed by asked, "How many names does your horse have?"

"Oh," said the farmer, "his name is Jack but he doesn't know his own strength. So, I put blinders on him and yell all those other names. He thinks he has other horses helping him!"—Fairfield (Tex.) Recorder.

$31.51 DRIVER'S LICENSE

People without driver's licenses, which cost only $1 are being rounded up and socked from hell to breakfast and from Dan to Beersheba under our ignominious fee system.

Here's what one citizen paid to have his colored man freed from the tenacious tentacles of the law for driving without a license:

Sheriff's arresting costs	$ 5.33
Justice of peace costs	7.58
Criminal court clerk	6.30
Fine	5.00
Witness fees	2.00
Conviction fee	5.00
Total	$31.51

The answer to such a weird but definitely serious array of expenses, of course, is to get yourself a driver's license for a buck.

But, foregoing all arguments that a man should abide by the law, this $31.51 is a lot of money for working people or even people who don't work.—Orlando Sentinel.

LARD RATIONING TO END

Lard rationing will end—and soon. It's an odds on bet, the trade thinks.

Here's why: Stocks are rising rapidly. Lard stored at Chicago increased 70 per cent in July to a total of more than 50 million pounds. That's nearly three times the supply on hand at this time last year. Meanwhile, the other earmarking half of production for the government has been set aside just as farmers are sending hogs to market in large numbers.

Housewives have cut way down on lard buying; they would rather save their red ration stamps for meat and butter.—Wall Street Journal.

DUMB ANIMAL

Jimmy was shaking his pet rabbit, demanding with each shake, "How much is five and five?"

"What are you doing with that rabbit?" asked his father coming out the scene.

"Aw shucks," replied Jimmy, "our teacher said rabbits multiply rapidly and this one can't even add."—Collier County News.

FIRST WARNING

A businessman thought his staff rather lax and indifferent, so he pinned up the following notice:

Bread is the staff of life, but that is no reason why the life of our staff should be one continual loaf.—Alamo (Tex.) News.

JUST A PRELIMINARY

"Sam, how long does you get in the jug for shootin' yo' wife?"

"Two weeks."

"Only two weeks for killin' yo' wife?"

"Yeah, then I gets hung."—Lake City Reporter.

POOR TASTE

A navy officer in the South Pacific was holding a pow-wow with a cannibal chief.

"If you see American soldiers come down from the sky in parachutes," said the officer, "please don't eat them. They are here to protect you from the Japs."

The chief grunted assent. "No eat white man," he said. "Too bitter."—Yank.

CINEMATIC CHATTER....

—By MALCOLM MILLAR
What The Movies Have To Offer During The Coming Week

You've really got a honey of a show coming for the owl screening Saturday and the Sunday. Molly run at the Prince theatre. Ray Milland and Payette Goddard are the top ranking stars, and in support are such featured names as George, Virginia, Field, Cecil Kellaway and William Bendix. The show is "The Crystal Ball."

Superb casting and direction, plus the excellent portrayals of every member of the cast, and with a story that's as new as a fresh laundered shirt, makes this one of the most delightful evening's entertainment that anyone could hope for.

"The Crystal Ball" has the endorsement of the best critics in the country, so I'm sure you can't go wrong if you mark the date in your book.

Chester Morris and Jean Parker with Barry Sullivan and a great cast of helpers come to town Tuesday-Wednesday in a story of TNT under the title "High Explosive."

"High Explosive" is a dramatic account of the daring men who transport nitroglycerine to war plants of the nation. It is designed for thrills, and friends it delivers them!

The subject itself is an exciting one. Few people realize the danger connected with the handling of that highpowered explosive known as nitroglycerine and the rivalry of Morris and Sullivan for the girl make it all the more exciting.

Those Merry Madcaps, The Ritz Brothers, teamed with Jane Frazee and Robert Paige and supported by June Clyde, Paul Hunt, Edmund McDonald, Lou Lubin, Andrew Tombs and Ray Walker, come romping onto the screen for the Thursday-Friday screening in "Hya Chum."

In this one The Ritz Brothers bring you a lot of student nurses for the newly created U. S. Cadet Nursing Corps. Girls will receive training in regular hospital nursing schools with all expenses paid plus all clothes and necessary supplies and be paid in addition while learning. Each student nurse received a registered nurse for war service. Inquiries of your local Defense Council or hospital.

DuPont researchers have developed a new type water repellent called Aridex, for treating coats, suits, sports clothes, draperies and covers, making them water-repellent. Cloth so treated not only sheds water but resists non-oily spots and stains which can easily be removed with a damp cloth. Many laundries and dry cleaners are now equipped to treat clothing with "Aridex" water repellent.

A new type of vacuum pump for extracting venom from snake bite wounds, made of Tente, a lightweight plastic, has been adopted by the U. S. Army Medical Corps. The Saunders-Venom Extractor Company Tarpon Springs has the contract for making this kind, which includes the "new" plastic pumps.

The American Legion Auxiliary of Florida is making an all-out effort to assist in the recruiting of WAVES, under the leadership of Department President.

Florida Newsmen Publicize The War

TAMPA, Aug. 26. — (FNS) — Some glowing reports are filtering from several war fronts which tell of effective work being done by Florida news and publicists in the armed services.

City boy, former Tampa Times reporter and President of the University of Tampa Alumni Association, was commended by Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle for his complete and comprehensive reporting of the battle of Pantelaria, Doolittle said. "The coverage of news and fine stories sent in from your wing during the final stages of the battle and surrender were unusually good."

Want to congratulate you on the showing we were able to make as a result. — Gen. Florida men noted in dispatches for their outstanding work are Bernal E. Clark, former publicity director of the Florida Power & Light Company, R. J. "Bob" Eastman, St. Augustine, formerly official photographer and publicity director of Marine Studios, Frank Wright of Gainesville, former publicity director of the University of Florida, and Kenneth Ballinger, former political editor of the Miami Herald and later assistant to the Attorney General. — When the war is won, these same able men will return to the job of promoting and publicizing the State of Florida.

Mrs. Rickenbacker Christens Ship

TAMPA, Aug. 26. — (FNS) — While sea-gulls soared overhead but did not light on her shoulder, Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker, wife of America's flying ace, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, cracked a bottle of champagne on the hull of the U. S. S. Mazama, launched in the yards of the Tampa Shipbuilding Company last Sunday afternoon. The Mazama, an ammunition ship, is the sister ship of the U. S. S. Mauna Loa, launched for the Navy last April. Its christening was originally scheduled for Aug. 1, but was rescheduled by the Navy without explanation.

Following the launching, Mrs. Rickenbacker left immediately for New York to join her husband just returned from a mission aboard.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Quite a stack of newspapers I left you yesterday, Judge. Aren't you in the newspaper business, are you?" "No, I just enjoy reading different papers so my nephew George sends them to me whenever he takes a business trip. I got a big kick out of some he sent me from several counties where they still have prohibition. Particularly from some headlines that read 'Drunk Driving Arrests Rise'."

"Bootleggers must post Ceiling Prices," "Federal Agents seize 'Trick' Liquor Truck." Doesn't that go to prove, Joe, that prohibition does not prohibit?" "I watched conditions pretty carefully during our 13 years of prohibition in this country. The only thing I could see we got out of it was bootleg liquor instead of legal liquor... plus the worst crime and corruption this country has ever known."
